Cultivation of Old Age.

There is too much education into old age. We don't recognize it as such, yet the young of both sexes on arriving "of age" are virtually taught to become old. The girl on leaving off short frocks is soon taught that it is unladylike or improper to romp. She must cease the impetuous run of childhood and walk in a dignified manner.

Custom gives her every encouragement to become sluggish. Her dross is a fashionable system of fettering the tody. When she marries, the restrictions necessary for the caltivation of old age are still more strictly enforced. She must then associate only with married women. She is received in full membership with the female married clan. It is undignified longer to associate with young girls if she be so disposed. She may do so fer a few years, tu: the unwritten laws and social mandate of the period are more subtle and powerful in their workings. A hundred unfersion influi ences force her in the eneventional path. Friends and relatives reprove, advise, censure unable to raise the phieger? Have you an irritation in the throat? A sense of oppression on the lungs, with short breath? Do you have a fit of coughing on Ising down? A sharp pain now and then in a region of the heart, shoulders and back? IF SO, OUL ADVICE IS to take at once a dose of Tuit's Expectorant; you will soon be able to whether the relief to the result of the sense of the country of the relief to the sense of the sense of the relief to t or tidicale any habit of an unconventional character. She finds herself in a thicket where to do sught save to advance in the narrow path trodden by conventionality is to eccounter a myriad of thorns. So she is doomed to the company and association of those who have involuntarily made it the business of their lives to grow old, and she grows old with them; cultivates sluggishoess, walks as lut'e as possible, and gets the liver complaint. Age is developed in many ways. Through weight of domestic cares and duties. Through dress, which imprisons and fetters. Through a life five sixth sport in the house, and when not in the house shorping at the store. Through cultivating the habit of looking on the darkest side of everything. Through grown up dignity which can never unbend in a run or a romp. Through constant repression of the playfulgess which was checked when she donned the dress of the grown up woman. People who play and are not afraid to "make fools of themselves" retain their youth much longer than Mr. Practical Sobersides. The habitudes of the mind it fluence the condition and go far to wards shaping the body. The difference between the face of the man who lauchs and the man who snarls proves this. Probably a corresponding difference could be found in their lungs and livers were Ruts and grooves of occupation promote old age. The man of fifty who has spent his life in travel, and has lived in many places and whose associations and societies have been constantly changing, will, presuming he has taken ordina rp care of himself, show less signs of age than the man chained for a similar period to a desk. who moves pendulum like from house to.office, day by day, and who has made scarcely a dez n new acqueintances.

Contrast the hod estrier of forty five with the man of like age who has exercised mederately, lived generously but temperately, whose mind is active, broad, full of idea and plan and who is constantly on the move about the world. The first shows marked sigts of premature age; the second is in his prime full of blood, visor and vitality. Breadth of men-tality, fullness and activity of idea, frequent change of place and association, added to temperate habits of body, are preservatives of matured vigor. It was said of old: "Man shall not live by bread alone." Every new thought, every fresh idea in a balanced brain brings with it a certain healthy stimulus, which imparts new life. Philosophers, scientists and writers are longer lived than those engaged in purely mechanical occupations. The cause of this goes beyond that limited range of deduction and conclusion called reason. But statistics will verify the substance of the assertions here made. Is it not, then, reasonable to suppose that as the range of human knowledge widens and minds become more and more quickened with the living fire of thought, that existence up to the point of three score and ten, and even later, may become an experience fuller of life, light and happiness than ever?

MR. VANDERBILT'S GIFT. - We mentioned last week the gratifying fact that Mr. William complete satisfaction. We believe them to be the best seeds in the market. jan31 LUNT & DAVIDSON. Sum of twenty five thousand dellars to the University of Virginia fer the erection of an observatory for the splendid telescope already promised by Mr. Leander J. McCormick.— Both these gifes are conditional upon the endowment of an astronomical professorship, without which the instrument and builing would of course be useless. The sum of fifty thousand dollars will constitute this endowment, fitteen thousand dollars of which is already pledged, and we cannot permit curselves to doubt that the remainder will be forthcoming. There are quite a number of gentlemen of fortuce, alumni of the University, whose wealth counts up to the millions, and we can scarcely deem it possible that they will suffer their Alma Mater to lose the finest telescope ever constructed in America. - Charlottesville Chronicle.

Dr. J. F. HAYWOOD, of New York, voluntarily inderses it. Read what he says:

Sow York, Sept. 19, 1877.

Dr. Tutt: Dear Sir—During this year I treated nine hundred cases of lung diseases. In the lower wards of the city the cases were of a very severe type. It was there my attention was called to Tutt's Expecterant, and I confess my surprise at its wonderful power. During a practice of twenty years I have never known a medicine to act as promptly and with such happy effects. It instantly subdued the most violenfits of coughing, and invariably cured the disease in a few days. I cheerfully endorse it as the best lung medicine I ever used.

Office Evening News, Augusta, Ga.
Dr. Tutt: Dear Sir-My little son was attacked with pneumonia last winter, which left him with a violent cough that lasted till within a month since, for the cure of which I am indebt-ed to your valuable Expectorant. I had tried most everything recommended, but none did any good until 1 used your Expectorant, one bottle of which removed the cough entirely.
With many thanks, I am yours truly,

HAD TERRIBLE NIGHT SWEATS.

Memphis February 11, 1871.

Dr. Tutt: Sir-I have been suffering for nearly two years with a severe cough. When I commenced taking your Expectorant I was reduced to one hundred and sixteen pounds in weight. I had tried almost overything; had terrible night sweats. I have taken half dozen bottles. The night sweats have left me, the cough has disappeared, and I have gained fifteen pounds in flesh. I recommond it to all my friends. With great respect, OLIVER RICE.
